

The River of Love

In the desert that this empty life can be

There's a stream to quench tired and thirsty souls

Beyond religion and the fruitless schemes of man

From the throne of God to the driest heart it flows

The river of love a river that's living eternal and free

The river of love that takes us from here to the place we were meant to be

With Him oh what a blessing is the river within

Some will taste it others wade into their knees

But true life's for those who swim out over their heads

For in the deeper place where you're no longer in control

You gain the power to ride the Spirit's current instead

It's not found on an earthly map so leave your GPS behind

Faith alone can light the way if you desire you will find
